HEADTEACHER'S BLOG

As we are all very aware the situation in Ukraine is terrible. To watch such pain and suffering that we are witnessing at the moment from afar is truly heart-breaking. Many families in Doncaster are directly affected by what is currently happening in Ukraine as they have family and friends there. I know we will all offer them as much support as possible at the moment.

The news and social media channels have all the latest information and this can be both worrying and distressing for both adults and children alike. There are many good resources out there at the moment to support children and below you will find links to a few:

In school we try to keep our focus on developing the curriculum especially on the broader aspects of that such as Music, Art and Poetry which are so important to everyone's personal development and wellbeing.

This week children have been creating artwork and poetry based on the brilliantly written and illustrated book, 'The Lost Words' by Robert Macfarlane and Jackie Morris which highlights the words for aspects of our natural world that are falling out of use and out of the dictionary.

There are lots of photos and examples of the children's work on the website and our social media. In a troubled world it has been good to celebrate nature and life in this way this week. We hope you enjoy them.
